REFORBS LIVING

EXPANDED CHATBOT KNOWLEDGE BASE

A more complete reference for Reforbs website enquiries

Source reviewed: https://reforbs.vercel.app/ and its publicly linked property, About, Community and Contact pages.

Review date: 3 November 2026

Intended use: Browser-side, deterministic PDF retrieval chatbot. No LLM or answer-generation API.

This edition expands the earlier knowledge base using the currently published 10-property directory and linked property pages. It records page-displayed prices, occupancy options, deposits, amenities, area descriptions, travel estimates, community content and contact information. It is not a live inventory feed.

Important: prices, room inventory, ratings, distances and page copy can change. The chatbot must describe these as website-published information reviewed on the date above, and direct customers to confirm current availability and final terms with Reforbs.

1. How the chatbot must use this PDF

Use this document as the factual knowledge source for customer-facing answers. Keep replies concise, friendly, and specific to the customer’s selected property and room type.

Retrieval order

- Detect intent first: property details, rent, deposit, occupancy, nearest location, amenities, food, rules, availability, booking, community or contact.
- If a property name is present, search only that property section first. Do not mix details from different residences.
- For price questions, distinguish single occupancy from double occupancy. Prices below are website-published monthly rates.
- For location questions, use the stated property area and published nearby-distance estimates. Say “the website lists approximately…” because travel times vary.
- For a question with several parts, answer every part that has evidence, then identify only the missing part.
- If a fact is not in this PDF, say that it is not specified and provide the official contact details.

Never invent live availability, room inventory, exact street addresses where not listed, guest or couple permission, refund deductions, lease notice periods, unlisted charges, or confirmed bookings.

Customer-facing fallback
“I couldn’t verify that detail from the information currently published by Reforbs. Please contact the team at +91 74200 40241 or hello@reforbs.com to confirm.”

Property-page preference
When a detailed property page states an occupancy option, room rate, refundable security or property amenity, prefer that property-specific detail over general homepage copy. Where the website contradicts itself, use the conflict notes in Section 7 and avoid making a universal claim.

2. Current Pune property directory

The homepage currently shows 10 active Pune residences. All ten individual property pages below are linked from the live directory. The monthly rates shown on the property cards match the listed double-occupancy starting rate for each property.

Category-count warning: The homepage currently displays “All Properties (10)” while filter labels show “Student Housing (2)” and “Co-Living (3)”; the 10 visible property cards resolve into 3 student-housing pages and 7 co-living pages. Use the ten named property pages; do not repeat these inconsistent category counts.

Single occupancy vs double occupancy

The global 3P privacy copy says all rooms are for single occupants. However, each of the ten property detail pages has both Double Occupancy and Single Occupancy sections with separate monthly rates. For a named property, use its detail page to describe listed room types, but say inventory must be confirmed. Do not generalise “every room is single occupancy”.

Food and meal-plan wording

The site says zero forced food packages / no mess lock and freedom to choose meal plans, while the “Start living your best life” section says food has been taken care of. Do not promise meals are included or excluded universally. Say no compulsory mess package is promoted and ask the host about optional meal plans.

Amenities are property-specific

The homepage shows a general amenities list, while each property has its own “Everything Included in Your Rent” list. Do not transfer a pool, gym, CCTV, AC, soundproof booth or other facility from one property to another.

Guest and couple policies

The site supports a social/freedom-led environment and says friends can be invited, but does not fully define visitor hours, overnight stays, or unmarried-couple eligibility. Double occupancy is a room type, not proof of couples policy.

Rates and availability

Rates are displayed by room type on property pages, but availability, discounts, move-in dates and final quotations are not live in the PDF. Always qualify rates as website-listed and request current confirmation.

Reviews / rating values

The individual pages show ratings and review counts. These can change. Do not treat them as guaranteed, and refresh from live pages if the chatbot is expected to quote them later.

Sanjay Park owner-supplied address

An earlier owner-supplied message identified “Sanjay Park, Lane 3, Viman Nagar, Pune 411032” and gave a separate Google Maps link, with airport / college estimates. The current ten-property directory pages do not clearly map that label to one of the ten named property pages. Do not merge it into a named property without owner confirmation.

If a customer asks about a conflicted or unlisted fact, use a short transparent fallback and provide the contact details. Never expose internal data-conflict notes as confusing technical language; simply explain that the team can confirm the latest property-specific terms.

Recommended low-confidence behavior

If a query has low relevance, ask one clarifying question or use the specific fallback. Never return the first paragraph or first property as a universal fallback. If one message contains several questions, answer each evidence-supported part separately.
